

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF OREGON

10 IN RE )
11 ALICE LEONA BARNES, ) Bankruptcy Case
12 ) No. 12-65084-tmr7 13 Debtor. ) MEMORANDUM OPINION

14 This matter came before the court on the application of Trustee, Joseph Charter, to employ Marjorie 15 Huff and her firm as special counsel for the Estate. Debtor has objected to the employment. After hearing 16 on May 28, 2013, the matter was submitted on the record, which was augmented by Ms Hauf's supplemental 17 declaration filed June 12, 2013.

18 Background:

19 In May 2006, Debtor Alice Barnes's son was involved in a motor vehicle accident in Las Vegas in a 20 car titled to Debtor. Nancy White (nka Miller) was injured and brought suit for damages in Nevada (First 21 Nevada Action). In that Action Ms White was represented by Marjorie Hauf and her firm Hauf and Ganz.
22 Debtor was represented by the Watson Rounds firm. Evidently Debtor was a named insured on a policy 23 issued by Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co. (Nationwide). In July 2009, Ms White obtained an approximate 24 $60,000 judgment against Debtor. She later obtained an amended judgment which added approximately 25 $13,700 in costs, for a total judgment amount of approximately $73,700 (the judgment).

MEMORANDUM OPINION-1

1 Debtor filed her Chapter 7 petition on November 30, 2012. Mr. Charter was appointed Trustee.
2 Debtor listed only two debts on her schedules. One was to Rogue Federal Credit Union for $1,500, secured 3 by a Chevy Tracker valued at $4,000. The other was to Ms White (noted as “Miller”), listed as general 4 unsecured for $73,856 based on the judgment. On Schedule B, Debtor listed a potential claim against an 5 insurance company and attorney concerning the First Nevada Action. The claim was given an “unknown” 6 value.

7 On December 28, Debtor’s section 341(a) meeting of creditors was held. On January 24, shortly after 8 the Trustee filed an amended inventory indicating possible assets to administer, notice to creditors went out 9 setting an April 23, 2013, bar date to file claims. As of today, no proofs of claims have been filed.

10 On February 15, 2013, the Trustee applied to employ Ms Hauf and her firm on a contingent fee basis 11 to investigate and pursue a “bad faith” cause of action against Debtor’s insurer, and malpractice claims 12 against Debtor’s former counsel, all deriving from the First Nevada Action.<sup>1</sup> The application was filed on 13 LBF 753.95. As part of the form, Ms Hauf signed a verified statement (First Declaration) that she had read 14 11 U.S.C. §§ 101(14) and 327 and FRBP 2014(a), and that her firm had “no connections with . . . the 15 debtor(s) [and] creditors” except that she “represented Nancy Yvonne Miller [White] in obtaining [the] 16 underlying judgement against debtor.” No other disclosures were made. Debtor objected to the application 17 arguing Ms Hauf was not “disinterested.”

18 On February 28, Debtor received her discharge.

19 On March 4, Ms Hauf apparently filed, on behalf of the Estate, a complaint in District Court for Clark 20 County, Nevada, against Watson Rounds, Nationwide and various other parties, including Allied Insurance 21 (Second Nevada Action). The complaint alleged multiple claims against Nationwide, many based on failure 22 to protect Debtor’s interest as its insured in the First Nevada Action. It also alleged claims for legal 23

25 <sup>1</sup>Under the proposed agreement, Ms Hauf would receive 40% of amounts recovered more than 90 26 days before the first setting for trial, and 45% of amounts recovered by settlement, judgment or award within 90 days of the first setting for trial or thereafter. Any costs advanced would be recovered after payment of attorney’s fees.

1 malpractice against Watson Rounds. It sought compensatory or expectation damages for denied policy 2 benefits, consequential damages, including emotional distress and attorney's fees in excess of $10,000, 3 punitive damages in excess of $10,000, and costs. The complaint's allegations suggest the outstanding 4 balance owed on the judgment at the time of the Chapter 7 petition was approximately $13,000.<sup>2</sup>

5 On March 18, the Trustee responded in support of the application arguing Ms Hauf met the 6 Bankruptcy Code's disinterestedness requirements. He argued Ms Hauf was well-suited to work for the 7 Estate based on her former involvement in the First Nevada Action. The Response attached a copy of the 8 complaint filed in the Second Nevada Action.

9 On March 20, a hearing on the application was held. By Minute Order entered March 21, Ms Hauf 10 was ordered to file a declaration by April 3, 2013, clarifying her representation of Ms White including any 11 representation in the bankruptcy case. She was also ordered to disclose her fee arrangement with Ms White 12 and whether she claimed an attorney's lien on the proceeds of the judgment. Response and reply deadlines 13 were set.

14 On March 25, Ms Hauf filed her declaration (Second Declaration) wherein she stated that she 15 previously represented Ms White in the First Nevada Action, that the Trustee had retained her to prosecute 16 the Second Nevada Action, and that any proceeds derived therefrom would be estate assets. She further 17 stated that the interests of "my prior client, Nancy White, and my current client, the Estate, are aligned," that 18 she did not believe representing the Estate violated any of the Nevada Rules of Professional Conduct, and 19 that the Trustee would be the final decision maker in the Second Nevada Action. The Second Declaration 20 made no mention as to Ms Hauf's fee arrangement with Ms White or whether she claimed an attorney's lien 21 on the proceeds of the judgment. Later that day, Ms Hauf filed an amended declaration (Third Declaration) 22 repeating the statements made in the Second Declaration and adding that her fee agreement with Ms White in 23 the First Nevada Action was on contingency, that she had not perfected an attorney's lien on the judgment, 24 and that the First Nevada Action was now closed.

26 <sup>2</sup>The $13,000 may not include the amounts of potentially avoidable preferential garnishments or funds held in Ms Hauf's attorney trust account.

1 Debtor responded to the Third Declaration. Among other things, she raised concerns as to whether 2 Ms Hauf's representation of Ms White had indeed terminated. She alleged Ms Hauf represented Ms White 3 at the § 341(a) meeting of creditors. She also argued Ms Hauf had failed to comply with the Minute Order 4 by failing to disclose her current fee agreement with Ms White.

5 The court then set a hearing on the application for May 28. The hearing notice advised that 6 “[m]atters to be discussed are the proposed attorney's failure to address issues raised in the 3/21/13 minute 7 order . . .”

8 The Trustee responded to Debtor's continuing objections, advising that Ms Hauf appeared at the 9 § 341(a) meeting at his invitation as she had earlier alerted him that a potential asset existed in the form of 10 the claims asserted in the Second Nevada Action. He further advised Ms Hauf was not licensed to practice 11 law in Oregon and, thus, could not have represented Ms White at the § 341(a) meeting.

12 At the May 28 hearing, the Trustee confirmed that the judgment had indeed been substantially 13 satisfied and that if the Second Nevada Action was successful, it was quite possible this would be a surplus 14 asset case. As to the pending application, Debtor raised her continuing disclosure and disinterestedness 15 concerns, and I again raised concerns that the Second and Third Declarations had not adequately addressed 16 the Minute Order's directives. In particular I needed to know whether Ms Hauf's representation of Ms 17 White continued, and the scope of that representation. I further needed more information as to the 18 contingency fee agreement with Ms White and whether that agreement would apply to any distribution from 19 the Chapter 7 Estate. Ms Hauf was orally ordered to file a more detailed declaration within 21 days.

20 On June 12, Ms Hauf filed a supplemental declaration (Fourth Declaration). In it she declared that 21 “[m]y firm continues an attorney-client relationship with Ms White as we continue to maintain her settlement 22 funds in our trust account and update her on the status of the collection of her judgment.” She further stated 23 she was not licensed in Oregon and had not represented or provided legal advice to any of the participants in 24 the Chapter 7 case other than her communications with the Trustee as to Debtor's possible claims against her 25 insurer and former attorneys. She acknowledged that because the judgment had not been satisfied there were 26 fees outstanding under her contingency fee agreement, and that “[c]urrently, Ms White's funds are in my

1 trust account and my fees will disburse with those funds.” She advised that Nevada law gave her an 2 automatic attorney’s lien for her fees but that such lien was only perfected upon written notice to the client 3 and she has not provided Ms White such notice. She further stated that in her opinion the Nevada Rules of 4 Professional Conduct did not prohibit her from representing the Estate. Finally, she advised she had 5 obtained the Trustee’s written informed consent to represent the Estate, but had not obtained similar written 6 informed consent from Ms White.

7 Discussion:

8 Ms Hauf’s employment will be denied for two reasons. First, she has an actual, or at least a potential, 9 conflict of interest. Alternatively, she has failed to meet the disclosure requirements of the Bankruptcy 10 Rules.

11 Conflict:

12 Under § 327(a), a trustee may employ a professional, including an attorney, who does not hold or 13 represent an interest adverse to the estate, and who is a disinterested person. (emphasis added). A 14 “disinterested person” is someone who among other things is not a creditor and who “does not have an 15 interest materially adverse to the interest of the estate . . . by reason of any direct or indirect relationship to, 16 connection with, or interest in, the debtor, or for any other reason.” §§ 101(14)(A), (C). (emphasis added).
17 The “for any other reason” basis has been referred to as the “catch-all,” Dye v. Brown (In re AFI Holding, 18 Inc.), 355 B.R. 139, 149 (9th Cir. BAP 2006), aff’d and adopted by, 530 F.3d 832, 838 (9th Cir. 2008), and 19 requires a totality of the circumstances, fact driven inquiry. Id. at 151-152.

20 Neither the Bankruptcy Code nor Rules define the term “adverse interest.” In discussing the term the 21 Ninth Circuit has stated:

22 A generally accepted definition of “adverse interest” is the (1) possession 23 or assertion of an economic interest that would tend to lessen the value of the 24 bankruptcy estate; or (2) possession or assertion of an economic interest that 25 would create either an actual or potential dispute in which the estate is a rival claimant; or (3) possession of a predisposition under circumstances that create a bias against the estate.

26 Dye, at 148-149.

1        In a Chapter 7 case, “a person is not disqualified from employment solely because of such person’s 2 employment by or representation of a creditor, unless there is an objection by another creditor or the United 3 States trustee, in which case the court shall disapprove such employment if there is an actual conflict of 4 interest.” § 327(c). Where the trustee seeks to employ special counsel to work on a specific matter, as here, 5 the conflict inquiry is directed towards the specific services to be performed. Stoumbos v. Klimnik, 988 F.2d 6 949, 964 (9th Cir. 1993); Fondiller v. Robinson (In re Fondiller), 15 B.R. 890, 892 (9th Cir. BAP 1981).

7        In applying § 327(c), Debtor, rather than a creditor or the United States trustee, has objected, as 8 required by the statute. However, there is authority that I may sua sponte consider actual conflict issues 9 stemming from dual representation. In re Am. Energy Trading Co., 291 B.R. 154, 157-158 (Bankr. W.D.
10 Mo. 2003); In re Penney, 334 B.R. 517, 520 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2005); In re BH & P, Inc., 103 B.R. 556, 565 11 (Bankr. D. N.J. 1989), aff’d in part, rev’d in part and remanded on other grounds, 949 F.2d 1300 (3d Cir.
12 1991)). Under the unique circumstances of this case, where there is in essence only one unsecured creditor, 13 and the conflict involves that creditor, I find it appropriate to follow the above line of cases and thus will 14 consider sua sponte (i.e. independent of Debtor’s objections) whether Ms Hauf has an actual conflict.

15        In determining whether a conflict exists, “[s]tate rules of professional responsibility apply, as long as 16 they do not conflict with the Bankruptcy Code and/or the Bankruptcy Rules.” Song v. Ehrenberg (In re 17 Song), 2008 WL 6058782, *11 (9th Cir. BAP 2008). Here, because Ms Hauf will not be practicing before 18 the Bankruptcy Court, but instead will be prosecuting the Second Nevada Action in Nevada state court, I 19 turn for additional guidance to Nev. Rule of Prof. Conduct 1.7 which provides:

20                (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a lawyer shall not represent a client if 21 the representation involves a concurrent conflict of interest. A concurrent conflict of interest exists if:

22                        (1) The representation of one client will be directly adverse to 23 another client; or

24                        (2) There is a significant risk that the representation of one or 25 more clients will be materially limited by the lawyer’s responsibilities to another client, a former client or a third person or by a personal interest of the lawyer.

1 (b) Notwithstanding the existence of a concurrent conflict of interest under 2 paragraph (a), a lawyer may represent a client if:

3 (1) The lawyer reasonably believes that the lawyer will be able 4 to provide competent and diligent representation to each 5 affected client;

6 (2) The representation is not prohibited by law;

7 (3) The representation does not involve the assertion of a claim 8 by one client against another client represented by the lawyer in 9 the same litigation or other proceeding before a tribunal; and 10 (4) Each affected client gives informed consent, confirmed in 11 writing.

12 Ms White is the only unsecured creditor,<sup>3</sup> who Ms Hauf still represents in some capacity. Only a 13 relatively small sum remains to be paid on the judgment. According to the Trustee, there is a distinct 14 possibility that proceeds from the Second Nevada Action will be sufficient to put this case in surplus status.
15 Additionally, Ms Hauf expects to be paid fees on a percentage basis from recoveries for the Estate and then 16 also collect fees on a percentage basis from amounts paid to Ms White. Given those facts, Ms White's and 17 the Estate's interests do not align, and Ms Hauf has an actual conflict. As the Trustee's counsel, she would 18 be tasked with helping the Estate maximize its recovery for the benefit of all potential distributees, including 19 the Debtor. Song, 2008 WL 6058782, at *9. On the other hand, her duty to Ms White runs simply to seeing 20 the balance of the judgment satisfied. She also has a personal interest in recovering fees for her firm. These 21 competing interests would be extant at all stages of the Second Nevada Action, including settlement 22 discussions or trial. See Duval Ranching Co. v. Glickman, 930 F. Supp. 469, 473 (D. Nev. 1996) 23 (impermissible conflict may arise if there may be substantially different possibilities for settlement or 24 litigation strategy, citing ABA Model Rule 1.7 Official Comment). As such, there is a "significant risk" that 25 Ms Hauf's representation of the Estate "will be materially limited" by her responsibilities to Ms White. Nev.
26 R. Prof. Conduct 1.7(a)(2). Stated another way, because "it is plausible that the representation of . . . [Ms

25 <sup>3</sup>For purposes of my analysis, I will assume that at some point Ms White will file a proof of claim.
26 Although it will be tardy, as the claims deadline has passed, it will nevertheless be entitled to distribution ahead of any surplus to the Debtor. § 726(a)(3), (6).

1 White] may cause . . . [Ms Hauf] to act . . . differently than . . . [she] would without that . . . representation, 2 then . . . [she has] a conflict and an interest adverse to the estate.” Gosser v. Arkison (In re Hammer), 2007
3 WL 7540944, *6 (9th Cir. BAP 2007) (quoting In re Leslie Fay Co’s., Inc., 175 B.R. 522, 533 (Bankr. S. D.
4 N. Y. 1994).<sup>4</sup>

5 What if Ms Hauf’s conflict is only “potential” (i.e. presently dormant) instead of “actual”? Some 6 courts have read §§ 327(a) and (c) as being complementary so as to allow inquiry into potential conflicts 7 under § 327(a) in cases of dual representation, with the court having discretion to deny the application on 8 that basis. See, e.g., In re Marvel Entm’t Group, Inc., 140 F.3d 463, 476-477 (3d Cir. 1998). Others have 9 held § 327(c) is in essence an exception to § 327(a) and thus inquiry is limited to actual conflicts in cases of 10 dual representation. See, e.g., In re Sarao, 444 B.R. 496, 497-498 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2011). There does not 11 appear to be controlling authority on this issue. However, Marvel Entertainment was cited with approval in 12 the trustee qualification context by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel in Dye, 355 B.R. at 154, adopted in toto, 13 530 F.3d 832, 838 (9th Cir. 2008), and in the present dual representation context in Gosser, 2007 WL 14 7540944 at *5. As such, it appears I may apply § 327(a) and exercise my discretion even if the conflict has 15 not risen to “actual” status. For the reasons stated above, at least a potential conflict exists, and that is 16 sufficient to deny the employment requested here.

17 Disclosure:

18 FRBP 2014(a) imposes disclosure requirements in large part to determine whether a professional 19 meets the “no adverse interest” and “disinterestedness” requirements. Neben & Starrett, Inc. v. Chartwell 20 Fin. Corp. (In re Park–Helena Corp.), 63 F.3d 877, 881 (9th Cir. 1995). The Rule requires that an 21 application to employ a professional state, amongst other things “all of . . . [the proposed professional’s]

23 <sup>4</sup>I have not overlooked that Rule 1.7(b)(4) allows the attorney in certain circumstances to engage in 24 concurrent representation despite a conflict if she obtains written conflict waivers upon informed consent.
25 However, the Rule also provides that such representation is only permitted if “not prohibited by law.” Nev.
26 Rule of Prof. Conduct 1.7(b)(3). In that regard, there is authority that such waivers are impermissible in the context of employment under § 327. U.S. Trustee v. S.S. Retail Stores Corp. (In re S.S. Retail Stores Corp.), 211 B.R. 699, 703 (9th Cir. BAP 1997). Even were waiver possible, per the Fourth Declaration, Ms Hauf has only obtained the Trustee’s waiver, not Ms White’s.

1 connections with the debtor, creditors, [and] any other party in interest . . . .” The Rule then requires the 2 professional to submit an accompanying verified statement of any such connections.

3 Full disclosure is an essential prerequisite for both employment and 4 compensation. Neben & Starrett, Inc. v. Chartwell Fin. Corp. (In re 5 Park-Helena Corp.), 63 F.3d 877, 881 (9th Cir. 1995). A professional has a 6 duty to make full, candid and complete disclosure of all facts concerning his 7 transactions with the debtor, and must disclose all connections with the debtor, 8 creditors, and parties in interest, no matter how irrelevant or trivial those 9 connections may seem. Mehdipour v. Marcus & Millichap (In re Mehdipour), 10 202 B.R. 474, 480 (9th Cir. BAP 1996).

11 Shat v. Kistler (In re Shat), 2009 WL 7809004, *6 (9th Cir. BAP 2009). Rule 2014's disclosure requirements 12 are applied strictly. Neben & Starrett, 63 F.3d at 881-882. Even negligent or inadvertent failures may result 13 in adverse consequences. Id. at 882. Upon failure to comply with disclosure requirements, employment may 14 be denied or revoked, or other sanctions imposed “even if proper disclosure would have shown that the 15 attorney had not actually violated any Bankruptcy Code provision or any Bankruptcy Rule.” Id. at 880.

16 Here, despite repeated encouragement by the court, Ms Hauf’s disclosures did not meet the above-17 criteria.<sup>5</sup> The First Declaration was wholly inadequate. It was couched in the past tense and failed to 18 disclose that Ms Hauf’s representation of Ms White is continuing. It also failed to disclose what percentage 19 contingent fee she was charging Ms White, what fees were still owed (which, because they were a 20 percentage of the recovery, would by necessity have required disclosure of the amount still owed on the 21 judgment), and whether or not the attorney’s lien given by Nevada state law would or could be pursued or 22 perfected.<sup>6</sup> In response to the Minute Order detailing what was required as follow-up, the Second and Third

23 <sup>5</sup>While Debtor may not have had standing to raise actual conflict issues under § 327(c), she did have 24 standing to raise disclosure issues in that she had a pecuniary interest in who prosecuted the Second Nevada 25 Action as, per the Trustee’s admission, there was a likelihood of a surplus estate. See In re Trepanier, 2010 WL 3881488, *2 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2010) (chapter 7 debtor has standing to object to claims if there is a reasonable probability of surplus); c.f., Duckor Spradling & Metzger v. Baum Trust (In re P.R.T.C., Inc.) 177 F.3d 774, 778, n.2 (9th Cir. 1999) (chapter 7 debtor has appellate standing if there is likely to be a surplus).

26 <sup>6</sup>See N.R.S. § 18.015.

1 Declarations continued the inadequacies. Finally, in response to a further court order, the Fourth Declaration 2 filled in some of the disclosure holes, yet still left questions unanswered, such as the percentage contingent
3 fee, the amount of fees outstanding, whether the attorney's lien would be pursued, and whether Ms Hauf 4 considered a distribution to Ms White from the estate part of the proceeds/recovery upon which her 5 contingent fee and/or lien would attach. These inquiries are all germane to the conflict/adverse interest 6 analysis, as well as whether the proposed contingent fee, see n.1 supra, was reasonable.

7 As a rule, bankruptcy courts should not have to pry information from a prospective professional, as 8 has been the case at bar. Initial disclosures should be as complete as possible. Follow-up disclosures should 9 address in detail any prior inadequacies and, if applicable, the court's stated concerns. Ms Hauf has failed on 10 these fronts, and, as such, the Trustee's application to employ will be denied on the alternative independent 11 ground of inadequate disclosure.

12 The above constitute my findings of fact and conclusions of law under FRBP 7052. An appropriate 13 order will be entered consistent therewith.
